New Ref Gun gets Players into the Game

Getting into the zone just got more fun with a new Ref Gun from Battlefield Sports™.

Los Angeles CA, February 28th 2005: For Laser Skirmish players to be really involved in the game they have to forget, at least momentarily, that it is just a game and become an active part of their team's mission. Movies do it, computer video games do it. Now, with the addition of a new Referee Gun, Battlefield Sports™ equipment users can do it too.

Theming of Laser Skirmish is a crucial part of the game experience. Being out in the woods, kitted out in camouflage outfits, carrying cool looking metal laser guns is all part of the fun. Now with a new rapid re-set pistol, Battlefield Sports™ operators can continue to suspend players' disbelief when resetting. Rather than a plain boring box, Laser Skirmish customers can get into the play with the Battlefield Sports™ Ref Gun.

A perfect combination of form and function the Ref Gun is simple and easy to use for both field operators and players.

The Ref Gun has a range of 10 foot (3 metres) and re-starts the Battlefield Sports™ laser guns fast.

"Players want to get back into the game quickly. This addition to our arsenal makes the game even more fun," said Shaun J. Browne, Vice President International Sales, Battlefield Sports.

When the players' gun restarts, a 10 second count down commences where the gun won't shoot but the player can't be hit and therefore giving a players fair chance to re-enter the battle.
